

About Rural Road Numbering – finding that address

All rural properties in the Burra and Urila area are identified by a standard Rural Road Number (RRN).

A rural address has three key elements: a Rural Road Number, a Road Name and a Locality; eg: 35 Badgery Road, Burra.

Rural road numbering is a permanent and easy-to-follow way of identifying and locating properties in a logical sequence along any road in rural areas.

Rural road numbers are similar to the street number used in urban areas, the only difference being that rural road numbers are determined by the distance of the main property entrance from the start of the road.

Rural road numbers (RRN's) are calculated by dividing the distance in metres from the start of the road by 10 and rounding down to an odd number (for properties on the left) or an even number (for properties on the right) as required.

For example, a property numbered 93 would be situated on the left side of the road and the entrance would be 930m from the start of the road. If the property was number 124, the entrance would be on the right-hand side of the road, 1.24 km from the start of the road.
